Preamble

The licenses for most software are designed to take away your freedom to share and change it. By contrast, the GNU General Public License is intended to guarantee your freedom to share and change free software to make sure the software is free for all users. This license, the GNU General Public License, was written by the Free Software Foundation to ensure the free availability of computer programs and to support the wider mission of free software, to promote the sharing and reuse of software in all forms.
